THE DAYS of the old basic education program that President Aquino likened to "force-feeding" are over.

At the formal launch of his flagship K-12 program, he said 12 programs—formerly referred to as the K to 12 program—in Malabang yesterday, Mr. Aquino said it marked the start of a new day for the country's youth who will now be given a "good opportunity to learn and achieve knowledge."

BAGUIO CITY—The Supreme Court rejected with finality a bid by the family of President Aquino to secure at least P5 billion in compensation for its Hacienda Luisita, affirming a ruling last November basing the value of the sugar plantation at around P196 million on 1989 prices.

The court voted 6-6 with one abstention in the decision described as a "toss-up" of the government resolve to implement a Comprehensive Agrarian Reform Program launched by Mr. Aquino's father, Corason Aquino, after the took power following a People Power Revolution that ousted the dictator Ferdinand Marcos in 1986.

Writing separately in this recent capital, where the high tribunal is holding its summer session, spokespersons Michael Mangera said the court ruling was "final and executory." He said the court would no longer entertain further pleadings and motions for reconsideration on the dispute that had raged for 27 years to resolve.

The Supreme Court, sitting en banc, also ruled that the Luisita farmers' 50% share in the 1989 land value, according to the 1989 land value for the 4,915-hectare estate where Hacienda Luisita Inc. (HLI) struck a deal with the government in 1989.

Emotive cheers from weeping farmers shattered the silence on the court premises, after the retired attorney Hacienda Luisita farmers to keep their

THE SUPREME COURT's final ruling on the distribution of Hacienda Luisita to farm workers showed the independence of the three justices appointed by President Aquino, Aurora Reg. Juan Velasco Aguirre said yesterday.

"It tends to show that the Palace-appointed justices acted independently and did not give a whole lot of ground to the President, unlike what we saw in the past," said Aguirre in a text message.

Mike A seeks permit to travel to Japan, HK

By Julia B. Salaverria

FORMER first gentleman Jose Miguel "Mike" Araya, who is facing a graft bid over the controversial National Network (NNN) deal, has asked the Sandiganbayan to allow him to fly to Japan to speak before Filipino workers there sent to meet with Japanese businessmen, and then on to Hong Kong for a "work needed" test.

The prosecution from the Ombudsman's office yesterday opposed the plea, saying the transaction the trip would of serious importance in upping and it appeared to be done for favors.

In his motion, Araya said he had received an invitation from Japan, resident Dr. P. P. Araya to speak before Filipino workers in Tokyo for the NNN deal, and to meet with Japanese businessmen to discuss possible investments in the Philippines related to hydroelectricity. He said his leave had scheduled to start for April 28 to May 5.

 After Japan, he said he intended to fly to Hong Kong to get some rest and return to the Philippines on May 10.

Araya said he had a right to travel because he had not been convicted of any crime.

Araya said he had been responsible for the NNN deal, which he said was not a graft bid, but a contract for the construction of a power plant in the Philippines.

China daily warns of 'small-scale war'

W-12: No more force-feeding

The Global Times, in an editorial titled "China should be prepared to engage in a small-scale war with the Philippines," wrote the war warning. "China must take resolute action to defend a clear message to the outside world that it doesn't want a war, but definitely has no fear of it," it declared.

Malabon and Philippine military officials were advised by the security world.

In a speech at Xinhua Island in Hainan, Sun Jintao City, President Aquino promised that his administration was raising international awareness on the territorial dispute between the Philippines and China to show the global community how Beijing was treating Manila.

Sun's visit

Mr. Aquino said the Philippines wanted to take the case to the International Tribunal on the Law of the Sea but China's opposition was unrealistic.

"The world must know that we are doing," the President said. "There is no need to start thinking if this is how we are being treated—whether they are as big or as small as us—maybe there will come a time that they will get the same treatment [from China]," he said.

It mentioned it was his intention to resolve the problem with China.

"We own the land," he asserted, referring to Palawan, which has about 200 kilometers of shoreline. "We are the only one who can use it and [we are] recognized by international law, especially under the United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea (UNCLOS). That's the only thing we're doing."

Asked for comment on the Chinese paper's editorial, Department of Foreign Affairs (DFA) spokesperson said the incident said that "such irresponsible comments do not serve a purpose here."

The Global Times is owned by the Chinese Communist Party's newspaper, The People's Daily. It has a reputation for publishing sensationalist articles that are often highly critical of foreign governments.

A NATURAL gas discovery in a disputed area in the West Philippine Sea (South China Sea) could mean more income than previously thought, a Philippine company said.

The Agusan del Sur officials were accused of violating the contract law when they issued the contract to the Ombudsman in 2006 and 2007, allowing the company to enter the contract.

The Office of the Ombudsman said the graft charges, which were issued on Presidential Decree No. 1871 that prescribes an annual production quota of 50,000 MT of sugar (sugarcane) production, no longer had a big to plant in. This was because the sugar had been repaid by the small-scale mining law of 1990.

The new act did not impose any annual production quota on sugar as a corporation and a government of law. The act issued in 2006 replaced the sugar law.

Igorot companies seen as mining partners

By Florino Malones
Bureau City

IF THE CONGILLERAS' rich natural and other resources continue to lure multinational corporations, why can't homegrown firms tap these for the region's development?

This is a very much possible, according to leaders of the Special Global Organization (SGO), an organization of Igorot people abroad.

This is why during its sixth international conference in Baguio City on April 11-13, the SGO chose the theme, "Sports for Partnership for Development," at a time when public-private partnership (PPP) is the administration's buzzword.

Indigo Dominguez, a member of the board of directors of Philippine National Oil Co. (PNOC) Exploration Group, proposed a sub-theme: Indigenous Wisdom for the Conditions.

"The key is facilitating PPM in areas occupied by indigenous people, such as the Cordillera, like enable them to become host to big business industries in the mining and energy operations and not just employees or landowners being paid some sort of money or crop damages as is the current practice," he told conference delegates.

Cries Italian model

Remember that how the Canadian government was able to get the Cordillera to support its policies in developing the mineral and natural resources there was by the help of the government and the private sector, he told the Cordillera set up their own corporation under Canadian law. The corporation became the "parent owner" which then invited major mining and petroleum companies to become "joint developers."

Having the strong experience to corporate mining in the Cordillera and elsewhere in the country, Dominguez said the Cordillera model could also be adopted.

He also said that the Cordillera, indigenous people should be allowed, even assisted, to form their own mining companies under Philippine laws, he said.

These homegrown corporations could become private owners, which can then invite other companies with adequate and financial expertise to become the developers under various contracts that allow developers to recover their costs. The set proceeds are then shared between the project owner and developers, Dominguez said.

He said he brought this idea to mining companies, mining professionals and some government organizations perceived to be supporting "the idea, there had been formal support," he said.

As early as 2005, Dominguez said he discussed the same idea and drew the interest of the Office and Goodwill Bureau and the Department of Environment and Natural Resources.

Even then, the president of the Chamber of Mines of the Philippines, Gregy Bano, who, although had initial reservations, said the scheme could be acceptable to the big mining companies, Dominguez said.

"I think that with the government, the people in the Cordillera can go ahead and start setting their own mining and energy companies (or corporations) under Philippine laws," Dominguez said.

"I think we already have so many expert professionals, many of whom have had foreign training and experience," he added.

Project owners

He said some foreign companies have and should find funds that could be invested in these initial funds.

But Dominguez stressed that membership and ownership in any homegrown company must include everybody in the community. "Everyone must not only be a shareholder but a shareholder as well," he said.

Once these legitimate corporate companies are organized, they can apply for the appropriate government licenses, such as exploration permits, mineral production sharing agreements, service contracts and other requirements, he said.

Dominguez has a proposal for areas already covered by valid licenses that which cannot be developed due to land ownership. "I think the current holders of mining licenses would be more than willing to go into joint venture arrangements with local corporations that can legally enter into contracts," he said.

This idea has begun to be adopted by a few indigenous people groups.

For example, the community of Banagay Pabog in Kapanga, Benguet, had organized themselves into a corporation and partnered with a foreign firm to develop a 5.8-hectare site for a hydro project.

Dominguez's proposal has drawn the attention of POC leaders, some of whom expressed interest about the mechanics of forming companies or corporations.

Probe on over P'que riot; 16 cops detained

By Nathaniel B. Moran

AMED calls for an inquiry into Parangue's deadly riot at Silvestro Compound in Parangue City, the local police chief yesterday admitted that his men used live ammunition to deal with the rock-throwing rioters, but maintained that only warning shots were fired.

"There were no soldiers but, let me say, we used either blank or live bullets," Senior Insp. Willy Wilson told the Inquirer on the phone.

"We have already identified at least eight persons from the city's Special Weapons and Tactics (SWAT) division who fired live bullets, but these were warning shots," Belasco said.

He added that the eight SWAT members were among the 18 policemen whose names were confirmed and who were detained at the Parangue police headquarters pending an investigation.

But the city police chief also admitted the actions taken by his men, saying they had done back against the wall when rioters were opposing the non-armed dissolution of a fire market at the compound's beginning, rioters threw stones, bottles and other objects.

"We were just in our zones. My men, when we were attacked, we were not in formation yet, and we were attacked while the other rioters were still engaging," he said.

"If the police acted that way, it was all in their defense. They were placed in a situation where they could no longer retreat," Belasco added.

He also noted that "most of the rioters were not members of AMED. They're no longer presenters but rioters and a mob ready to burn and destroy." he said.

Belasco, who said he would welcome an investigation at any service, noted that there were only between 200 and 300 policemen deployed at the site on that day. He said to control an angry mob of around 1,500.

In Camp Crame, PNP spokesperson Senior Capt. Genoveva Carpio said, "If any wrongdoing was committed on our side... the responsibility of the rioters and rioters will be meted (out) for appropriate punishment."

The bloody dispersal, which left one rioter dead and at least 30 others injured, resulted in three combinations and calls for an investigation from Congress, the justice and local or department, and the human rights commission, as well as

Ayala, Metro Pacific team up for LRT bids

Together, firms stand a chance to bag vital projects

By David C. Domingo

METRO Pacific Investments Corp. and Ayala Corp. have formed an "exclusive" alliance to pursue and develop light-railway transit (LRT) projects in greater Metro Manila, beginning with those included in the government's public-private partnership program.

In forming the alliance, both companies will acquire greater financial clout to pursue highly contested railway projects such as Metro Railways Transit-3 upgrade and rehabilitation, and the LRT3 extension from Balintawak Center.

The two groups are better suited to the transportation industry. The Ayala firm will avoid such other bidders as well competition in the infrastructure space, analysts say.

Under a memorandum of agreement signed yesterday, Metro Pacific and Ayala Corp. will each own a 50 percent share in the joint venture and related real estate developments in the region.

The partnership will initially bid for the light rail transit projects identified under the government's PPP program. The two companies are open to working together on other rail-related opportunities, the two companies said in a statement.

The last time the two conglomerates worked together was in early 2010 when they teamed up to bid for the Angkor water project.

"We are glad to be partnering with Metro Pacific Investments group for this specific purpose. We each have unique strengths and capabilities that, when combined, create a unique value proposition in rail development," Ayala said and that executive officer John Legaspi added to Ayala said.

"We hope to contribute meaningfully in helping raise the standards of our public utilities. This is vital to our nation's progress and competitiveness. Developing an efficient mass transit system is a huge endeavor which will be

SSS earnings up 11.8% to P25.5B in '11

By Rowen M. Domingo

THE SOCIAL Security System's total earnings in 2011 jumped by 11.8 percent to P25.5 billion, from the P22.8 billion reported the previous year partly due to improved collection performance.

Basilio de Quirino Jr., SSS president and chief executive, said in a statement that the increase could also be attributed to "proactive management of operations expenses and robust investments income."

"Service delivery is continuously improving, thanks to enhancements in information technology systems," de Quirino said. "Our move toward more electronic and Internet-based transactions resulted in more efficiency and better service to our members."

He said that last year, the private fund collected some P98 billion in contributions, rising by 8.4 percent from the P77 billion reported in 2010.

Also, SSS benefits payments in 2011 reached P75 billion, a 5.8 percent higher than the P71 billion in benefits paid out in 2010.

Bulk of the payments had been earmarked for retirement and death benefits claims.

"Collection surpassed benefit payments by P12.2 billion, the highest recorded (surplus) since 2002," the SSS chief said.

"This is an early sign of our robustness in steadily building up the investment reserve fund and lengthening the secured life of the SSS Fund."

As for income from investments, the SSS channeled up some P30 billion last year—an increase of 7.3 percent from the P28 billion reported in 2010.

De Quirino said part of the income came from the penalty collection program the SSS offered to employers members last year

The #1 HMO in the country* Celebrates its best.

The country's top health maintenance organization (HMO) held a night of celebration and recognition for their best agents and brokers, TOAST, Maxicare's Annual Extraordinary Agents Awards held at the Mandarin Oriental Hotel on March 30, 2012.

Conceived back in 2006 as a way to give much deserved recognition to their top performers, the Extraordinary Agents have become an annual event brokers and agents look forward to. Without all their hard work, Maxicare wouldn't be the undisputed leader in the HMO industry.

This year's event was also a historic night for Maxicare where TOAST became the official recognition for the annual extraordinary awards, making this year's night of celebration more prestigious. The TOAST event is a symbol for hardwork and success brokers and agents can strive for. Furthermore, this is the first year for Maxicare awarded the Top 3 Agency Unit Heads, as recognition for their contribution to Maxicare's growth.

TOAST ceremony was hosted by Vice President for Sales and Marketing, Anni C. Molabuan. Her inspiring words set the mood for the evening. She offered her admiration to all extraordinary partners, together with Maxicare team members, who worked hard in making Maxicare the best in the HMO industry. Some of Maxicare's deserving extraordinary partners were awarded with local and foreign travel packages as part of Maxicare's 2011 incentive programs. Others were lucky to have won exciting raffle prizes handed out at the end of the night.

Utility to spend P11.9 billion to improve services electricity volume

By Amy R. Reyes

MAGLA Electric Co., the country's biggest power distributor, has lifted up its capital spending to P11.9 billion in 2012 from only P9 billion last year, as further improve its power distribution services and lower system losses.

In a filing, Meralco unveiled its approved capital expenditure budget was geared to "improve power quality in areas with large concentration of new customers, give priority to correction of critical deficiencies in the system, stretch the loading limits of Meralco facilities and enhance protection and one-offensive projects."

More 75 percent or P6.9 billion of the planned P11.9 billion spending for the year will be used to fund electric capital projects related to the power distribution business, while the rest will be used for non-electric capital projects.

Funding of capital expenditures will be covered substantially by internally generated funds and borrowings from local and foreign financial institutions, Meralco added.

'Illegal' mining in Zambales depriving PH of taxes

By Rex T. Ochoaño

THE NATIONAL government, which is presently seeking a higher share from mining revenues, has lost millions from revenue penalties being levied off by illegal small-scale miners from a mineral operation in Zambales, authorities said.

Consolidated Mines Inc. (CMI) president Bruce Franklin said in an interview that $2,000 worth of taxes of minerals are, valued at P211 million, have been taken by illegal small-scale miners between mid-November 2011 and this month. The miners, allegedly operating with illegal permits from the Zambales provincial government, have so far shipped an estimated 40,000 tons to China in the right manner, he said.

Franklin said in a phone interview that the CMI has been contacted with the police and the military to implement the CDO. "Last year, we have received a lot of reports that small-scale miners' activities have increased. We will need to coordinate again on our next course of action," Franklin said.

On April 20, the Regional General Lupon Bureau reported that the Bureau of Customs (BOC) would not issue clearance to at least 10 small-scale miners, who were given permits by Ochoaño and who were allegedly engaged in the theft of mineral ore in the province.

Franklin said in a phone interview that the CMI has been contacted with the police and the military to implement the CDO. "Last year, we have received a lot of reports that small-scale miners' activities have increased. We will need to coordinate again on our next course of action," Franklin said.

"The national government has lost about P14 million in tax revenues, so far, because of the illegal trading and shipping," Franklin said. "If we, the rightful owners of the minerals are, had been the one to export the ore, we would have paid the national government P10 million in revenue taxes and royalty fees since we are operating in a mineral reservation."

Franklin said several Zambales firms, Hemagroup, Ochoaño & Co. and others, are in the process of setting up a joint venture to mine small-scale mining permits on CMI's mining site in the CDO area and other areas.

"The Meralco and Consolidated Mines Inc. said CMI is rightfully operating and that only the BOC should be able to issue permits on operations within the mineral reservation," Franklin said. The mining executive said CMI is considering its options but would prefer that the national government resolve this controversy with the local government.

425th Taguig City Founding Anniversary

Jobs and livelihood prioritized in Taguig's foundation day celebration

Call it the greatest vision's shadow for the Taguigites, the city of Taguig is emerging to take its place as a major contributor to the country's growth and development. This has meant a redirection in local governance to meet new challenges brought about by the change.

A commitment to more jobs and improved livelihood opportunities for the city's 425,000 inhabitants, the city government of Taguig has laid up a series of meaningful but not-filled activities for its week-long celebration in observance of its 425th Foundation Day.

To kick start the week-long celebration, Taguig Mayor Lani Capatzen led the "Bumabang Kalatagan, Trabaho at Pagpapaligay" (One Ride during rush hours within the city proper), "Bumabang" (a motorcade of Mayor Lani with 1,000 bikes and taxis at the SM City Divisoria), and the lighting of 10,000 candles of citizen perspective, religion, equipment and business responsibility celebration.

Mayor Lani will also lead the ascending procession for donating cooperatives in a simple program dubbed as "Sa Kooperatiba, Subayag sa Pagpapaligay: Pagsagay para sa Kalatagan sa Pagpapaligay sa Taguig". There would also be a Ride (Riding) Competition with the theme "Upang, Laging Masagana," a two-day festival and musical parade for the city's indigents.

Additional activities scheduled for the week-long foundation include the city-sponsored Gig in Taguig and Heritage Concert, Bike Ride for a Cause, 200M Taguig-Palawan Pilgrimage 2012 with bicycle operators and drivers as participants, basketball try-out for 2013 PHL, Goon-Goon young men and Special Education Development (SPED) Family Day.

There would also be social service activities like policy seminars, distribution of school uniforms, and inauguration of halfway houses in District 1 and District 2, respectively, like reading, providing of financial assistance for the victims of typhoons, as well as whole day mobile program service on April 28, where Taguigites can have their civic discussion provided without leaving regions the Dept. of Foreign Affairs office.

Mayor Lani is also scheduled to host a luncheon with the officers and members of Taguig Homeowner's association on April 26, and officiate the main wedding of Taguig/Taguig for (500 couples). Of course, the celebrations would not be complete without a fireworks display, which would light up the sky over District 1 and District 2 between 8:00pm to 10:00pm on Thursday, April 26.

Taguig residents will also be treated to a street dancing during the "Tribute to Bacolod" in Bacolod City featuring the "Taguig-Bacolod Street Dancing group that showcases the unique culture and arts of Taguig.

In recognition of the more classical traditions of love and care for their family, Mayor Lani will award plaque and cash incentive to each of five identified Capatzen's view of the city.

Among the construction activities are the following: Business Center, 194, built on January 5, 1990, and residence of J. Ramon St., Bayo Plaza, Marikina Hotel Foundation, who served

FEDERAL LAND
INCORPORATED

Experience the excitement of NY Big Apple at the Park West

The most anticipated development has arrived. Federal Land Inc. recently filed its ground-breaking ceremony for Park West, marking the realization of its most ambitious, exciting and much-awaited project at Fort Bonifacio.

"This is certainly one of the most anticipated projects of Federal Land," revealed Federal Land president Alfred V. Ty. "For years now, our prospective clients and related parties had been bawling for our team with queries on when our Fort Bonifacio project will be available for take up. After years of careful planning, it's finally here."

This monumental project brings to reality the formidable alliance of geniuses in the real estate, architecture and interior design. The synergy of Architect Beng Flores, James (Natchik) Chaffin Chicago, HOK (U.S.), and the Company's development prowess at Federal Land are evident in the client's vision of the building architecture and unparalleled attention to details. Indeed, Park West is the culmination of a brilliant masterplan, an ingenious application of design elements and principles as well as the luxurious decor that are geared towards the satisfaction of a discriminating market.

"Such then, we can only guess that the state of market reception," Ty adds, "is that we have laid a good product. Results indeed have been spectacular for Park West. Many A-1 units are already fully booked. The much-awaited Penthouse and Wing A units, on the other hand, are now open for reservations."

Anchored in the sophistication of the New York lifestyle, Park West has deliberately been designed and executed with elegance as its core concept. From the dramatic lobbies to its stylish interiors, Park West will speak of luxury at its finest. Its place as a landmark in the skyline gateway to Grand Hyatt Manila, the full luxury business hotel in Manila, Grand Hyatt Manila is located in the city center of the world such as New York, Hong Kong, Moscow, Tokyo, San Francisco, Beijing, Shanghai and Berlin. The presence of Grand Hyatt in Manila, with Federal Land's first remarkable undertaking, will raise the country to the same standing as those sought after destinations.

Park West offers spacious 1-bedroom, 2-bedroom and 3-bedroom units with beautiful furnishings and finishes. All units are fitted with a balcony which affords an expansive view of the cityscape and beyond. In the podium area, villa-type units are available for discerning clientele who put high value on privacy and exclusivity. The villa crop of the complex will enjoy direct access and full-fledged view of the scenery deck.

The amenities are nothing short of exquisite. The influence by the design team derived from popular luxury resorts around the globe, the pent at the back of the infinity pool which is flanked by the lounge and is a great viewing area. Residents can also take advantage of other exclusive facilities such as the function room, multi-purpose ball, game room, bar, room, gym and business center.

One can experience the best of their address, where at Park West Park Bonifacio, Tagaytay, overlooking the other side is your full address via to reach Manila already. There's no need Park West to be both places," Ty adds.

Park West is conveniently located along 11th Avenue in Fort Bonifacio Center City and is within close proximity to St. Luke's Medical Center, SM, MC, Home Depot, and premier educational institutions such as the American School Manila, Manila Japanese School and International School Manila and the public schools located in the area. The Fort is situated between the Central Business District of Manila and the shopping and commercial districts of Ortigas. It is bounded by major thoroughfares such as EDSA, C-5 and Kalyan-Avenue, an accessibility is a major plus point.

With its contemporary architectural design and sleek glass facade, Park West can find other unique high-rise residential projects been observed. These playful, pretty poufs can make any room happy are the colors and designs which either go around like a kind of scarf, or are scattered strategically in spot designs.

Circular characters

There are purple-footed poufs with poppies colored leathers on a cinnamon-colored fabric, for example, or fabric paired with circular characters, alternating with embroidered geese on a light green background. There is a kitescape pouf, later combined with various colored leathers, and graphics to resemble and mimic geometric flat-shaded under fabric.

The combinations and figures are endless, and would likely change when viewed all together at her showroom. On her web site are designs in the making, including Cookie poufs and the outside of the Chocorouche.

Through the door one of a kind designs.

Cookie will gladly encourage in any role combination upon order. "I would like to think of my poufs as art pieces rather than outdoor furniture," she says. "I have a few people who do the work, so there is no possibility of major output." Customized poufs will take at least three weeks to finish.

Cookie's pouf truly makes a room happy. As a designer and, it makes for something prior to look at them once you have to the interior. In a child's room, it can be the case and add playful sophistication. Cookie's pouf, which she calls Pouf, is something you can't have enough of—the kind of thing you want a little at your home for, justifying it as a mood and not a seat.

Find available at Cookie Guernsey's showroom, 7 Power St., Montclair City, NJ 07042, or John Brown Art and Design, 179 Madison Ave., Chicago, Ill., 60601. Call Lisa at (847) 413-6666.

COOKIE's pouf is a dresser seat to your next room.

Tripp Trapp: The chair that grows with the child

THE TRIPP TRAPP Chair entered in 1973 by designer Peter Eidek has never been better. Baby does, so you had your first baby. The Tripp Trapp was almost 40 years later it is still unique: the only chair that can take you from baby to adult, keeping your seat and comfort all the way.

The Tripp Trapp designer's inspiration came from working in a nursery. The Tripp Trapp is the only chair that can take you from baby to adult, keeping your seat and comfort all the way.

Tripp Trapp provides a stable base that supports a child's feet and allows them to sit at the correct height, adjust the chair level, and so on.

Moreover, the Tripp Trapp chair's unique design allows it to be used in many ways: as a high chair, a booster seat, a desk chair, and so on.

Tripp Trapp is made from high-quality wood and is available in many colors. It is a Tripp Trapp high chair that is available in many colors.

Children with autism don't need to be 'fixed'

The biggest and most important factor is the willingness of parents to first accept the situation. After that, it is vital that they learn to accept what their child does and can do

FOR too many people, autism is simply a word used to broadly describe anything different. Autism is a word for a child, autism is something that "vibes" differently. It is a complex condition for children and adults to understand. In other words, it's not just autism.

Why the Mediterranean diet is good for your health—and the environment

PEOPLE who wish to eat healthy should consider the Mediterranean diet, according to a report released on Earth Day.

The report "Tasting Place," released by the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO) and published in collaboration with the United Nations, particularly recommends the Mediterranean diet to populations in developing countries—and that would include the Philippines.

The report said the Mediterranean diet not only had high nutritional value, but also contributed to preserving the environment. It pointed out that food items recommended by scientists to be eaten more often—fruits, vegetables, bread, rice, grains and legumes—had a lower impact on the environment. "These items are the backbone of the Mediterranean diet."

The report noted that, in developing countries, using average incomes were affecting dietary choices. In view of this, it observed that "to be important to provide access to and education about healthy food like fruits and vegetables (which had caused health development in developing countries) is essential."

Proper nutrition, the report said, should be improved for infants and children to "securely improve overall health later in life." A balanced diet, coupled with an active lifestyle, could minimize the risks of overweight, obesity, diabetes, cardiovascular diseases, diabetes and metabolic syndrome, the report said.

The report also said governments should address the lack of transparency and accountability in the commercial changes of food around the world to improve national access to food. "This means, for instance, ensuring the production of crops to be used in biofuel does not interfere with the production of crops for food," it said.

The report emphasized, "The food system must encourage 'sustainable and living' so the idea that people's needs will be met should not be achieved at the expense of the suppliers or producers."

part of the program.

Realistic food prices

To ensure sufficient food supplies, "Tasting Place" said consumers should recognize viable and sustainable sources of livelihood. Farmers should be able to ask realistic prices for their products.

It said, "In many countries, food prices are kept artificially low because they do not take into account the environmental impact of producing food; the high market costs associated with long-term sustainability; eating habits, the costs required to pay farmers and farm workers a decent living wage plus benefits; and the billions of dollars in government subsidies that farmers receive to grow certain commodities."

"If farmers could charge real prices for the food they grow, consumers, especially in wealthy countries, would recognize the impact of their food choices."

The report said some 30 percent of food was wasted worldwide, while one billion people went to bed hungry each night and another one billion suffered from health problems related to obesity. Agriculture contributed one-third of global greenhouse gas emissions that were causing global warming on the rise in average temperatures.

"Tasting Place" is a collaboration between FAO and United Nations University. It is the first report, an evaluation of environmentally sustainable solutions to achieve hunger and poverty. It will be available for purchase on Amazon and iTunes starting tomorrow, April 25. For more details and updates, visit www.tastingplace.org.

Whenever the summer heat hits us, we all could agree that this season is hotter than the previous one. Perhaps so. Like it or not, global warming now is an everyday reality that everyone has to deal with. Saving energy therefore is everyone's responsibility.

You can enjoy the comfort of your air conditioning, conserve electricity and save money if you do the following:

1. Increase the temperature of your air conditioner temperatures. Every a 3 degree higher setting could mean significant savings and you won't even notice it. When we consider air and temperatures in the Philippines usually falls in the range of around 22 to 34 degrees. So anything lower (colder) would be an unnecessary waste. Note to remind that you don't need to be freezing during summer; you just need to be comfortable and survive the heat.

2. Use air-conditioner energy by ensuring the room is properly sealed and by setting it to this during and windows to properly with to reduce space or leaks on the walls.

3. Shades, curtains, and drapes should windows from the heat too, which longer your house cooler. Also, reflective films can be used on windows to reflect out rays of the heat and without reducing the light you receive. At a side benefit, when doors and windows are shut, your AC will operate more efficiently.

4. Ensure you buy a properly sized unit for the area to be cooled and the intended number of persons occupying the room. The wrong size AC will use more electricity and increase your energy bills. Save money and conserve electricity by buying the correct unit.

5. If you are a heavy user, get an inverter type of system. Once a period of time, the inverter air conditioner with a variable-speed compressor will save you a lot of electricity accompanied to a conventional fixed-speed air conditioner. GE's inverter system promises just that. In addition, it boasts of 40 percent energy savings vs. 22 percent energy savings (based on the previously mentioned BOP (Bottled Oxygen) system) for example.

6. Where possible, place air conditioner in the most efficient place. If you have a room with a lot of windows, place the unit in the room with the most windows. If you have a room with a lot of windows, place the unit in the room with the most windows.

It has to work very hard. It can save energy to cool your home.

7. Regular maintenance will help ensure that your air conditioner operates efficiently. Check the unit's filter at least every month by holding it up to a bright light. If you cannot see through it, it is time to replace or clean the filter. Also check the unit's coils and fan to make sure the condenser coils and fan are clean.

8. Perhaps the most important rule in the simplest, most obvious one. Because it may not be the appliance that consumes the most electricity in the household, your air conditioner may not be the most energy-efficient. For example, if you can get away with a fan, which uses very less energy or by taking a bath, then do so; the cost to the environment would be much lower.

There are just some of the many things you can do to help solve the problem of global warming. Although they seem rather small and insignificant, the effect could be great if all households observe such energy-saving practices. After all, isn't it hard to imagine that next summer will be hotter than this one?

Rom-com ends reign of 'Hunger Games'

LOS ANGELES—Box office competition finally overwhelmed "The Hunger Games" and pushed it to third in ticket sales, ending its four-week streak at No. 1. The economic comedy "Think Like a Man" topped the charts with $10.3 million in sales over the weekend, while the love story "The Lucky One" finished second with $12.8 million, according to studio estimates.

"Think Like a Man" is based on comedian Harvey's own selfing, confession relationship guide "50 Shades of Think Like a Man." Still, the weekend performance "exceeded everyone's expectations." Audiences gave "Think Like a Man" an 'M' grade in a poll conducted by survey firm OnePoll.com.

"The Lucky One" tells the story of a US Marine who returns from his third tour of duty in Iraq, convinced that the one thing that kept him sane and alive was a photograph of a beautiful woman he found in the middle of war. It is also based on a book—the 2009 best seller from Nicholas Sparks.

The movie starts in Iran and Taylor lobbying and cost about $25 million in product. Iran's boycott has been helped the movie lost $10 million.
